Welcome address

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

We cordially welcome pharmacologists, physicians and clinicians, scientists and researchers, health professionals, patients and representatives of the pharmaceutical industry to the 1st Meeting in Translational Pharmacology, 38th Spanish Society of Pharmacology meeting/9th Spanish Society of Pharmacogenetics and Pharmacogenomics meeting.

We are delighted and happy to welcome you to the historical city of Santiago de Compostela, declared a World Heritage City by UNESCO and as the final destination of a thousand-year-old pilgrim route: the “Camino of Santiago” which, since the 9th century, has transformed this “finis terrae” into a meeting place of Western culture and thinking.

The Scientific Committee tried to create an attractive programme, which will give new insights into clinical research, basic science and therapeutic strategies. Recent developments and advancements in Pharmacology and Pharmacogenetics/omics will be highlighted by worldwide leading experts in the various fields. The Congress will be this year a meeting point to exchange ideas and experiences with members of the three invited societies of pharmacology (Greek, Italian and Portuguese) who kindly joined our initiative and we hope that the event also gives us opportunities for a unique interactive environment within a scientific and educational setting. We feel confident that Santiago de Compostela, with its famous history of art and culture, charm and numerous restaurants and bars, will provide an excellent background for further friendships and collaborations. The Executive Committee, the Scientific Committee, together with the Local Organising Committee, will do their best to meet all the expectations of all attendees.

We hope that your participation in the congress and your stay in Santiago will be very pleasant and inspiring.
